Money design

The "reeve" is the standardised unit of currency in the United Kingdom of Euchronia. It comes in several denominations marked by size, shape, and type of coin, and ranges in value from large gold coins, to average silver coins, to various copper coins for subunit amounts.

Euchronian ingot

The largest denomination of reeve is the Euchronian ingot, equivalent to 20,000 reeve. It is rectangular in shape, fitted with a special stone to prevent forgery, and rarely seen due to its high value.

Euchronian gold coin

The Euchronian gold coin is equivalent to 5,000 reeve. It is a circular golden coin bearing the likeness of the first king of Euchronia, who is extolled as the Merciful King.

Regalith silver coin

The Regalith silver coin is a relatively new denomination equal to 1,000 reeve and is commonly known as "churchsilver". It was issued by the Crown Theocracy to commemorate both the state's adoption of Sanctism as its official religion and the construction of the Regalith Grand Cathedral. It is the same triangular shape as the Sanctist crest, and serves to reinforce the political power of the Sanctist Church.

Euchronian silver coin

Silver coins come in two variations. The standard silver is round in shape and bears the crest of the Euchronian royal family, and is equal to 500 reeve.

Copper coin

Copper coins have been in circulation across all three countries since before annexation and continue to be used today. There is no uniform value for them, and they're mainly used for exchanging nominal amounts too small for silver. These qualities (as well as how rarely they are counterfeited) have led to them remaining unregulated. All copper coins are round in shape but feature various designs. The most common coin in circulation is the Euchronian standard, but there are many featuring geography from Oceana and Montario as well.
